LETTER FROM MRS. JOHN SHERMAN COOPER

Mrs. Cooper Reminiscences On Trip To Newport With Pres. Kennedy

As my niece and I stood in line at the National Airport waiting to board the plane for Rhode Island, I remembered again the wonderful day three years ago when President Kennedy asked the Coopers to fly up to Newport with him. As I thought about that earlier trip, I wished that John were going with me again, but my husband had engagements in Pulaski, Wayne, and McCreary counties over the Fourth of July and was on his way home.

I did not want to disappoint my niece who had never been to Newport and was looking to this weekend, and I must admit, also, I love Newport myself. As we waited to board the plane, I told her about our trip from the White House with the President. While we were standing on the White House lawn waiting for the helicopter to descend I became so fascinated by its hovering that I forgot I had my hair piled a foot high in one of the last of the bee hive hair arrangements. When the wind from the propellers hit my head, the entire structure shifted and went streaming out from the back of my head like a wind sock.

But that minor disaster did not scratch the excitement of being in the helicopter with the President for a five minute trip to Andrews Field, and then on an Air Force plane which landed us at Quonset Naval Station across the bay from Newport. In another helicopter we landed on the green lawn of Mrs. Kennedy's mother's house, Hammersmith Farm, which was just across the road from Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan's house, our destination again this year.

Newport is one of the oldest towns on the East coast, first settled in the 16th century. It was founded by refugees from Massachusetts who went there in search of religious and political freedom. In the old town there is still standing a beautiful Protestant church as well as a famous synagogue, both carefully preserved by the Historical Society. The old town is a mixture of charming 18th century houses that are becoming so fashionable that it may turn into a Georgetown with lovely shops from Boston and New York which cater to the summer visitors.

Around 1880 New York and Boston millionaires began to vie with each other in building marble palaces on Bellevue Avenue. Now the Breakers, one of the old Vanderbilt houses opens to the public and almost a million people come to see it every year. Another Vanderbilt house, Beaulieu, has been bought by Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Buchanan. He was the former protocol officer under President Eisenhower, and it was they who gave a large dinner dance in honor of the French, Spanish and Greek ambassadors and their wives the night that we arrived.

There were lots of friends from Washington and all over the country. This large house is perfectly arranged for entertaining as there are four drawing rooms leading from a big black and white marble floored entrance hall. There is no need to take up a rug as everyone danced in the hall which opens directly on to the gardens and

Davis Attends Furniture Show

Alvin Davis, of Hazard Furniture Company, is attending the Summer Furniture Market in High Point, North Carolina, which is open to retail furniture and department store buyers only. The event runs from July 12-16.

Early reports from the market show that the Mediterranean influences are still creating the major interest along with Modern or Contemporary designs, and the Early American and French Provincial influences are close behind.

Totin' Chicken

When there's a picnic in the offing, cold fried chicken makes the meal a banquet. Everyone loves crisp, juicy fried chicken, and the pieces are perfect for out-of-hand nibbling. Because today's chicken comes to market at such an early age, they take less cooking time, according to the National Broiler Council. Add herbs to the seasoned flour for added zippiness. Fry the chicken the night before and tote it in an insulated bag. Accompany with fresh tomatoes, a thermos of fruit punch, chocolate cake or cookies — and you're set for a glorious summer picnic.

Skillet Herb-Fried Chicken

¼ cup evaporated milk
1¼ cups all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon each dried rosemary and thyme leaves
2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in serving pieces
Oil for frying
Pour evaporated milk into bowl. Combine flour, salt, paprika, pepper and herbs in shallow dish. Dip chicken pieces in evaporated milk, then roll in flour mixture. Pour oil in skillet to a depth of ½ inch; heat. Place chicken, skin side down, in skillet and brown. When chicken is brown on one side, turn and brown second side. For crisp fried chicken, cook uncovered 15 to 25 minutes on each side, turning once.
YIELD: 6 to 8 servings.

Vicki Castegnaro Attends 1965 National FHA Meeting July 12-15

Vicki Castegnaro, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guido Castegnaro, Hardburly attended the 1965 national meeting of Future Homemakers of America in Philadelphia July 12-15.

Vicki, along with 1,500 other teenage delegates and advisers of this national organization of high school home economics students, participated in activities related to the meeting's theme of "Building Blocks for the Future."

Mrs. Orville Freeman, wife of the secretary of agriculture, made the keynote address on this theme, urging her young audience to participate in such programs as community beautification and aid to pre-schoolers through Head Start. "These things you can do now," she said, "to help prepare not only yourself but the world for the great future ahead."

Other speakers included, from New York City, Dr. Mary Calderone, executive director of the Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S. and Helen M. Thal, education director of the Institute of Life Insurance. Speakers from Washington, D. C., were Dr. Pauline G. Stitt of the Children's Bureau and Dr. Theo-

BOOK REVIEW

By Jesse Hill Ford

"The Liberation of Lord Byron Jones," by Jesse Hill Ford, a young Southern writer's "strong, wrathful, shocking" novel about race relations in a small Southern town, has been chosen as the Book-of-the-Month Club Midsummer Selection.

George Gordon Lord Byron Jones is a wealthy Negro undertaker in a town called Somerton, Tennessee. The "Liberation" that he seeks is simply that he wants to assert his legal right to divorce his wife, who has been deceiving him with other men, both white and black. But Negroes, even wealthy ones, are not expected to get divorces in this part of the South — especially when the formal proceedings would bring into the open the name of a white correspondent.

To make the impending suit even more extraordinary, Jones hires as his attorney the town's leading white lawyer, Oman Hedgepath. Although Hedgepath is interested mainly in preserving the status quo, he is talked into accepting the case by a liberal-minded nephew. Before the novel comes to its wryly ironic conclusion, several men — both white and Negro — have been killed. In the end there are no victors, except perhaps the Black Muslims, who have made converts in the Negro community.

John K. Hutchins, reporting to Club members on "The Liberation of Lord Byron Jones," writes, "There is an air of authority here that only a Southern author, writing from the inside, could bring to such a work. His book is vital and alive and immediate, as becomes involved with the overriding domestic crisis of our time."

Mr. Ford's tale, for all its humor, is a rough one," Mr. Hutchins continues. "It portrays brutality (the more frightening for its casualness) with a starkness that will shake many who would prefer to believe that such things cannot be or, at least, should not be talked about."

Jesse Hill Ford was born in Troy, Alabama, thirty-six years ago. He was graduated from Vanderbilt University, and after service in the Navy attended the University of Florida, where he began his first novel, "Mountains of Gilead" (published in 1961). He has written short stories for "The Atlantic" and a play for the CBS Television Workshop. In 1961, Mr. Ford won a Fulbright Fellowship to study in Norway. He and his wife and children now make their home in Humboldt, Tennessee.

Rainbow Girls Entertain At Meeting Of Kiwanis Club Tuesday, July 13

Elmer Roll was program chairman at the regular Kiwanis meeting Tuesday evening, July 13, at Don's Restaurant. He presented for entertainment, Rainbow Girls, composed of Pat Noble, Karen Fritz, Mary Sue and Bobbie Webb.

Mary Sue sang "Over the Rainbow" as opening number and was accompanied by Bobbie on the piano.

Pat and Karen each gave a discussion on the subject, "What Rainbow Is", explaining the origin and meaning. A summary of their thought and remarks were as follows:

Rainbow is not just a club or a lodge; it is a life dominated by beauty. It is a colorful life. The name derived from the first great rainbow at the time of Noah's ark; it is derived from God's promise to Noah that the world would not be destroyed by water again. The groups of Rainbow Girls are called assemblies; each is sponsored by a group of Masons or a chapter of the Order of Eastern Star. This is very similar to a Kiwanis Club sponsoring a Key Club.

The local assemblies meet twice a month normally, except during vacation. Originally Rainbow membership was open to girls from 13 to 18, but has been lowered to 12.

Basically, Rainbow teaches ten things: Existence of a Supreme Being; the great truths in the Holy Bible; to seek dignity of character; a conception of the highest things in life; effective leadership; church membership; patriotism; cooperation with equals; love of home; and service to humanity.

The Kiwanis program closed with a second song by Mary Sue, "If I Could Paint A Rainbow".

Pres. George Pendleton explained the scholarship offered to the Key Club of this District of Kentucky for enrollment in Kentucky Southern Baptist.

He also mentioned that the National Key Club Convention for this year would follow the National Kiwanis Convention in New York City at the World's Fair.

THE MIGHTY MIDGET
WANT ADS WORK

by Nevyle Shackelford
Hyden, Ky. — One hears a lot about poverty these days and what people are doing about it; about councils, associations, and committees, and such being set up to promote community development; about dozens of programs of this kind and that kind, all designed to help make a better way of life for the people who carry on somewhere below the median on the nation's social and economic totem pole.

In nearly all cases the programs are predicated on the presumption that if given the opportunity and some expert assistance and guidance, people will help themselves. And if there was ever a place where the validity of this presumption has been tested, it is here in economically depressed Leslie County.

It all goes back to 1961 when, according to County Judge George Wooton, the Leslie County Ministerial Association, sparked a movement which resulted in the organization of the LCDA (Leslie County Development Association). Meeting in the Presbyterian Church here with County Agent Rufus Fugate, county officials, preachers, staff members of the then newly-initiated Eastern Kentucky Resource Development Project, and a group of interested citizens the Association was formed with these stated aims:

To encourage and promote development and preservation of natural resources in Leslie County; to encourage the location of new industry and upgrade and expand industry already existing; to promote health, education, and welfare; to stimulate in the people a greater sense of civic consciousness and pride; to encourage them to take a much larger part in the affairs of the county.

Many things have happened since that first meeting night back in March 1961 and lack of newspaper space at this time prohibits going into detail. A fairly good idea, however, can be drawn from this summary.

First, citizen interest was immediately forthcoming until now the LCDA has members from all communities in the county. Then through this interest directed by the LCDA, the Hyden City County was revitalized with a much more workable city government and police protection. Also in the meantime, 385 miles of rural roads have been constructed, 61 bridges built across the creeks and rivers, a library tax voted and through this a county library and book mobile established.

For the benefit of tourists, numerous roadside parks with tables, barbecue pits, and restrooms were constructed and campsites developed on the upper reaches of Lake Buckhorn where it touches Leslie County.

In addition and in the interest of county beautification, four annual county-wide clean-up campaigns have been conducted. These campaigns have resulted in the removal of all junked cars from highway right-of-ways, a refurbished courthouse and city streets, and recreation areas developed in many communities. Also out of this beautification program, Leslie became the first county in Eastern Kentucky to develop planning and zoning.

These are a few of the major things that have been accomplished by the citizens working on their own and using their own resources. An interesting sidelight on this endeavor is related by Judge Wooton who tells that in constructing the new roads into the various communities, the citizens often put up the money for fuel and operator hire of roadbuilding equipment and sometimes when culverts were not available they used, instead, hollow beech logs.

Some of the other good things that have come to the county under the sponsorship of the LCDA is a Head Start program with nine centers, 23 classrooms, and 335 children; a work training program for 152 high school youths, and a recreation project for folks in isolated communities. To finance these projects, the county has received grants totaling $160,000 under the Economic Opportunity Act and employment for 207 people.

The LCDA is by no means resting on its laurels after these accomplishments. According to its president, the Rev. E. T. Ehresman, these are some of the projects being pushed at present; Water and sewage; a 30-unit low rent housing project; a project of environmental sanitation, a cooperative drive to get Highway 80 between London and Hazard improved. The association is also, with virtual assurance of getting it; working toward a new county library building and a $517,000 health project covering the entire spectrum of preventive medicine.

Now all this hasn't come easily. For every modest accomplishment, there has been a struggle against odds and in each one is an interesting story. But in more than mere economic benefit, the effort has been worthwhile.

The try for self-betterment through the use of their own resources, says Judge Wooton, has drawn the people closer together. In an humorous vein, he said the activity has resulted in such a harmonious state of affairs that even members of different churches are now attending each other's funerals.

And in speaking of churches, County Agent Fugate gives them considerable credit for the success of LCDA which, by the way, is a member of the Upper Kentucky River Area Development Council. Ministers of Leslie county churches, he said, contributed much to harmony of the meetings and to county wide cooperation of the people, and provided a stabilizing influence so badly needed.

And thus this is one example of how people in one county helped, and still are helping themselves, when the opportunity was presented.

Richie Awarded S. S. Certificate

Zeke Richie of Dwarf, a representative of Perry Farm Center, has been awarded a certificate of merit by Southern States Cooperative upon completion of a correspondence course on feed.

The presentation was made at an area merchandising school held by the cooperative at Huntington, W. Va., on July 14, 1965.

The course, which ran over a 10-month period, covered dairy, swine, beef and sheep feeds as well as specialty feeds. Also covered were pullet and commercial egg production, turkey and broiler production, feed sales tools, policies and the sales approach to use in selling Southern States feeds.

These are a few of the major things that have been accomplished by the citizens working on their own and using their own resources. An interesting sidelight on this endeavor is related by Judge Wooton who tells that in constructing the new roads into the various communities, the citizens often put up the money for fuel and operator hire of roadbuilding equipment and sometimes when culverts were not available they used, instead, hollow beech logs.

Some of the other good things that have come to the county under the sponsorship of the LCDA is a Head Start program with nine centers, 23 classrooms, and 335 children; a work training program for 152 high school youths, and a recreation project for folks in isolated communities. To finance these projects, the county has received grants totaling $160,000 under the Economic Opportunity Act and employment for 207 people.

Frankfort, Ky. — Most of the early political speculation has been on candidates for governor and lieutenant governor in 1967, but some are making motions for the minor offices.

Secretary of State Thelma Stovall misses no opportunity to make appearances at large gatherings. Observers here expect her to run for state treasurer, an office she held when Bert T. Combs was governor. She was secretary of state under Gov. A. B. Chandler.

Under Kentucky's Constitution as constitutional officer at the state level may succeed himself.

State Auditor Henry Carter, Secretary of Agriculture Wendell Butler, and State Treasurer Emerson (Doc) Beauchamp may have their hats in the ring in 1967. These have given no indication, nor has Appeals Court Clerk Drex Davis.

M. R. (Mike) Mills, the 39-year-old commonwealth attorney of Hopkins, Caldwell and Crittenden counties, may be a newcomer to the field as a candidate for attorney general.

Mills has held appointive tasks under the last three governors, Chandler, Combs and now Edward T. Breathitt. Mills is the senior member of the Madisonville law firm of Mills, Spain & Mitchell.

In 1958 Mills was named to a special committee by Gov. Chandler to rewrite the criminal rules of procedure for Kentucky's judicial system. He was reapointed to this committee by Combs.

In February, 1963, Combs named him chairman of a task force on corrections to make a study of the state's penal system and to come up with administrative and legislative recommendations.

Among the recommendations were the hiring of a professional corrections commissioner, revamping of the State Probation and Parole Board, increased emphasis on education and prison industries, and an upgrading of personnel from guards to professional staff members.

He is now a member of Breathitt's Commission on Corrections and Community Service.

Breathitt last year named Mills as chairman of his Task Force on Criminal Justice. The task force is charged with the responsibility of making a study of the entire relationship of the poor man and the courts, with special emphasis on bail bond procedures, and counsel for the indigent and capital punishment.

A final report is due the governor November 15 for possible administrative and legislative action. Primary mission

Order Restrains Man In Mine Interference

A court order has been issued restraining Sam Jones of Lost Creek from interfering with strip and auger mine operations on his land on Lost Creek.

The order was requested by age. Attached to the complaint the River Coal Company and the Compton Auger Company, was a copy of a deed describing the transfer of the mineral rights to the land from the Jones family to the Tennis Coal Company, dated May 28, 1903.

A complaint lodged in Perry Circuit Court July 16 said Jones argued the companies have no right to such mining on his land.

The complaint argued that the company has large sums of money invested in mining preparations and sales contracts, and that unless Jones was restrained from interfering with the operation, the company would suffer irreparable damage.

"WITNESSETH, that said parties of the first part, in consideration of the sum of eleven hundred and ninety four dollars, cash in hand paid, receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, have bargained, sold, granted and conveyed, and by these presents do hereby bargain, sell, grant and convey unto the said party of the second part, the following property, rights and privileges, in, of, to, on, under, concerning and appurtenant to the hereinafter described tract of land, which said property, rights and privileges are as follows, to-wit:

Police Arrest Knott Man In Strip Mine Stand-Off

Dan Gibson, 80, of Clear Creek in Knott County, is free on a $500 appearance bond after his arrest a week ago for allegedly flourishing a deadly weapon in an effort to keep strip miners off his step son's property.

A large force of State Troopers, the County Sheriff and his deputies, over 13 law officers in all, was dispatched to deal with Gibson after Caperton Coal Company officials obtained a warrant and a peace bond from Knott County Magistrate Bill Everage of Sassafras.

The warrant was issued after Gibson, according to his own statement, appeared on the land, a 100 acre tract on Cocker Trace off Clear Creek on Hard-burley Mountain to post a "No Trespassing" sign for the benefit of heavy equipment operators who were about to begin work.

Gibson said he had a .22 caliber rifle with him, but denied that he pointed it at anybody.

The confrontation between Gibson and the miners, and later the law officers, was a day-long drama that ended when Eldon Davidson, principal of Jenkins City Schools, a co-chairman of the Appalachian Group To Save Land and People and a friend of Gibson, went to talk Gibson into surrendering after the warrant was obtained.

Davidson described his role in the Gibson arrest to about 200 members of AGSLP who met Friday evening in the Knott County court house in Hindman.

Davidson told the gathering he went up to talk Gibson into coming off the mountain because "I decided if I didn't talk Dan into coming in, there would be loss of life on that hill."

Wells Announces Meeting For Retarded July 26

Mr. Garland Wells, President of the Hazard Area Association for Retarded Children, announced today that the regular meeting of the Association will be held Monday, July 26, 1965 at the Kentucky Power Company at 7:30 P.M.

The program for the evening will be a film titled, "A Class for Tommy," which shows how classes in public schools can be arranged to meet the needs of mentally retarded children.

A discussion will follow the showing of the film.

Anyone and everyone interested in understanding and helping the retarded is urged to attend.

Strip Mining Test Case Starts In Knott County Court

The state of Kentucky will seek intervention Friday in a Knott Circuit Court case testing the legality and scope of broad-form mineral rights deeds. State Attorney General Robert Matthews said yesterday a motion to intervene as defendant would be filed.

This marks the first time the state has taken an official position on application of the broad-form deeds, which have been used to destroy surface land to reach coal seams.

Asst. Attorney General David A. Schneider will ask the court to make the state a party. Originally Governor Ned Breathitt wanted Matthews to intervene as a friend to the court.

The case at stake involves the Kentucky Oak Mining Co. of Knott County. Kentucky Oak is suing a number of private property owners under the broad-form deed. The firm says the Kentucky River Coal Corp. leased the deed.

Schneider's motion to intervene says the firm does not have an unqualified and unreserved right to remove the coal in any manner it deems necessary.

"To interpret the deed so as to give the mineral owner a complete license to destroy large portions or the entire surface if necessary, would in fact make surface ownership and rights under such broad-form mineral rights a mere nullity, depriving the surface owner of the use and enjoyment of his land without any relief or remedy or law."

The attorney general has legal rights to protect the public from hazards caused by operation of such strip and auger mines under the strip-mining statutes, Schneider said.

Attorney for the defendants is Whitesburg lawyer Harry Caudill.

Youth Corps Works

175 People So Far

The Neighborhood Youth Corps, set up to put underprivileged youth on jobs has currently placed 175 in city, county, state and federal offices and installations.

Percy Combs county director for the project, said this morning that 25 more young people would be placed on the job by tomorrow afternoon to bring the total work force to 200. That total is all that the program allows.

Medical Society To Support Road Bond Issue

The Perry County Medical Society is on record in support of the $176 million bond issue which will be voted on in November.

The resolution was signed by Dr. Charles C. Rutledge, secretary of the organization, it was announced today by the Kentucky Better Roads Council, Lexington.

It was pointed out in the endorsement that the $176 million bond issue will net a total of $860 million for capital construction. A major portion of the total figure will come from federal matching money.

The program calls for $139 million for highway construction, including farm-to-market roads, the primary system and the Appalachian road development program.

The second largest share goes to education, $22.5 million. College and university dormitories, classrooms, science laboratories and libraries are included among the building projects.

Thus far more than 250 state and local groups have approved the program.

Low-Cost Frame House Described To UKRADC

The Upper Kentucky River Area Development Council Tuesday heard a Berea College industrial arts teacher describe a low-cost house for low-income families now on the drawing boards at Berea.

Carl Kilburn told the Council, meeting at the Hindman Settlement School, that the house now being planned has three bedrooms and that indications are it can be built for $5,000, including $300 for the cost of a building lot.

The house would be frame, largely prefabricated, and four unskilled workmen supervised by a highly skilled builder can put it up, Mr. Kilburn said.

Berea is designing the house with federal planning money. The college hopes to erect six prototypes of the design in the near future, to test it. Once perfected, low-income families in the Appalachian region would be encouraged to build them.

Charlie Gibson, local representative of the Federal Housing Authority outlined possible ways in which low-income families might raise the money to build such a house.

Outright FHA loans and government-backed local loans were possibilities, he said, with special consideration available for older residents.

In other action, the Council unanimously approved a motion that it would not hire a local man to the position of Regional Planner, but would instead seek a qualified individual from another section.

This action was in response to a request by the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington, which is considering the Council's application for funds with which to set up a permanent Youth Corps projects were going ahead full steam.

Ronald Glen Combs Wins Golf Tourney By Edging Out Jack Duff 72-73

The Hazard Jaycee Club sponsored a local level Junior Golf Tournament at the Hazard Country Club on July 16, 1965. Eight teenage golfers participated in the local tournament with the winner and runnerup representing the Hazard Area at the Kentucky Jaycees' State Tournament at Scottsville, Ky., Saturday, July 24, 1965.

The tournament winner was panned by Tom Lee, Lannie Ronald Gene Combs, 17, son of Combs and George W. Combs, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Combs of all three of the Hazard Jaycee Hazard. The runnerup was Jack Duff, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Duff of Wabaco. Combs fired a bristling 72 to narrowly edge out Duff who came in with 73.

Both boys will compete in the Scottsville Classic, a tournament to be announced later.

Robert Gibson

Gibson Accepts Position With Johnson's Tire

Mr. Robert (Bob) Gibson has accepted a position with the Johnson's Tire Service, 647 East Main Street, Distributor for The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, for the past 28 years. Mr. Gibson, will be Manager of Sales and Service.

He is a native of Perry County, married the former Miss Bea McDaniel, daughter of Mr. Chester McDaniel, Lohair, Kentucky. They have two children, Danny, a student at the University of Kentucky and Kathy, a High School student.

Mr. Gibson is now residing in Hazard and will be joined by his family in the near future.

Herald Ballad Contest

Deadline Is August 11

The Herald reminds Perry County's poets and song-writers of its ballad contest, in celebration of the Combs family reunion and Kentucky's Homecoming year.

Prizes will be given for the best ballads concerning the history of the Combs family in Kentucky, or on the theme of former Kentuckians returning to their native land.

The deadline is noon, August 11th.

Emergency Squad Is Organized By Twenty Hazard Firemen

According to a statement from Hazard Fire Chief Lawrence Sizemore the local fire department has organized an Emergency Squad and at the same time the Perry County Rescue Squad has donated the two ambulances to the City of Hazard.

The Perry County Rescue Squad will continue to operate but without ambulance service.

The FD Emergency Squad will give the same service the public has had access to since July of 1962 when the Perry County Rescue Squad came into being.

Sizemore resigned his position as captain of the Perry County Rescue Squad at a recent meeting to become captain of the FDES.

"Since 1962 we have answered 163 calls," Sizemore said, "and 90% of these required some sort of ambulance service," the chief added.

These calls include three drownings, two burned patients, heart attack victims, accident victims and other emergencies. "We gave oxygen to 32 patients Sizemore continued."

The FDES will be operated by city firemen, according to Sizemore. The local FD has a membership of 20.

The organizing and reorganizing of the Perry County Rescue Squad and the Fire Department Emergency Squad came about after two recent meetings where it was decided to give the ambulances to the city and where Sizemore resigned from the Perry County Rescue Squad.

Perry County's clean-up campaign has led a group of Hazard auto dealers to form a salvage company as a means of disposing of old car hulks while hoping for a profit on the operation as well.

The Hazard Salvage Company, established earlier this month, is now doing a growing volume of business at Allais, where the Smith and Brown Construction Company was formerly located.

Good Parts Saved

Causey, manager of the salvage yard, strips all cars of usable parts before they are torn apart.

Participating in the car dealers' cooperative effort are the Faulkner, Crutchfield, Baker, Seale and Smith and Brashear firms.

Acting as a spokesman for the new company, Bernard Faulkner of Faulkner's Garage on East Main Street said the salvage yard idea came up during a casual conversation among dealers who were interested in getting rid of junk car eyesores.

With this dual purpose in mind, the Salvage Company is now in the process of obtaining a pressing machine, a device that mashes auto bodies into compact bales six feet by four feet by four inches thick.

The firm hopes to make the press available to other junk car dealers in a cooperative effort to cope with the problem of accumulating worthless hulks.

But the Hazard Salvage Company isn't waiting for the device before it tries to control the car accumulation problem.

Carl Causey, Hazard, General Manager of the Hazard Salvage Company, has established a well-ordered yard at Allais and come up with a plan to for neatly storing the old car bodies.

He cuts them into handy parts, stacking only hoods in one pile, car tops in another, then placing the main body of the cars in neat stacks to conserve space.

Causey is in charge of stripping the salvaged cars of saleable parts. Over 3,000 storage spaces for various items in long rows of shelves are available at the Allais site.

Causey is particularly enthusiastic about the possibilities of the auto press. He says there is a ready market for old car metal, once it is neatly baled. He hopes the press will be portable, to allow it to go from place to place, eliminating potential eyesores before they actually occur.

Neat Stack

Causey conserves space by an orderly stacking arrangement. The car above was destroyed by fire.

B. & P. W. Hold Annual Picnic

Some forty eight members and guests enjoyed the Annual Picnic of the local Business and Professional Women's Club in the garden of Mrs. J. O. Harper on Monday night at 6:30 p.m.

Miss Sharon Jackson was chairman of the picnic and she and her committee had worked out a bountiful menu for the members to carry in including fried chicken, baked ham and everything good to eat that goes to make a picnic a success. Mrs. Harper supplied the home-made hot rolls and, needless to say, she took the day off from her store to take care of the rolls.

Mrs. Lyda Scaggs and Mrs. Clery Banks, other members of the committee, had charge of the entertainment and many games of fun and laughter were enjoyed. Mrs. Grace Strong introduced her guests, Doug Holliday and Jim Gullett, and they too entertained us with their 'String Instruments' and voices. Also, one of the highlights of the entertainment was a vocal duet, "On Top of Old Smokie" by Mrs. Beulah Cornett and Mrs. Flora Collins—this you should have heard and seen.

Some eight or ten door prizes were given by Mrs. Harper which is in keeping with her hospitality. Other guests besides the two young men included Edna Collins, Gladys Smith, Edith Combs, Mrs. John S. "Ma" Combs, Mrs. Callie Combs, Dicey Callahan, Mrs. Anne Caudill, Arbutus Vesco and daughter, Freddy Jane, Miss Betty Cornett, Mrs. Mary Stringer, Anne Whitaker, Doris Hall and Mrs. Phyllis Wirtz Adams.

VA Questions And Answers

Q—As the re-married widow of a veteran, I have never applied for pension because I believe I am not eligible. However, the veteran's son, in my care, may be eligible. Should I apply for a pension for him?

A—You are right in assuming you are not eligible for pension because of your remarriage does not affect the eligibility of the veteran's son, and you should apply for a pension for him. Your nearest VA office will give you forms and assistance.

Q—Can you tell me how many veterans of the Spanish American War veterans are still alive?

A—There were only 17,000 Spanish-American War veterans alive on January 1, 1965 and it is estimated that number will have shrunk to about 16,300 by July 1, 1965. The average age of these veterans is 86.6 years and there are more than 2,000 of them over 90 years of age, according to VA records.

Q—I am 82 years old and my father was a Civil War veteran. I would like to know if I am entitled to a pension because of his service?

A—The Veterans Administration makes compensation or pension payments to children of veterans who are under age 18 or age 21 if they are attending a recognized school. Should the child be unable, for physical or mental reasons, to be self-supporting, the pension may be continued after the stipulated age limits. There is no general compensation or pension payment to normal children over 18 (or 21).

Perry County people should read their County Paper.

LOST AND FOUND

A few weeks ago, a friend of mine who lives across the street from our college was mowing the lawn and cleaning around the hedge in the yard, and she found a class ring. The date of the ring is 1961 and on the inside of the ring is the name of M. C. Napier, and the initials are I.V.T. Contact Agnes Perkins, Asst. Bursar, Cumberland College, Williamsburg, Ky.
